▼ Quotes

"It's the choices that make us who we are, and we can always choose to do what's right."

-Peter Parker (Maguire) | Spider-Man 3

Citation

"We must all face the choice between what is right and what is easy."

-Albus Dumbledore | Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire

Citation

"We don't see things as they are, we see them as we are."

-Anaïs Nin

Citation

"So, I guess we are who we are for a lot of reasons. And maybe we'll never know most of them. But even if we don't have the power to choose where we come from, we can still choose where we go from there. We can still do things. And we can try to feel okay about them."

-Stephen Chbosky | The Perks of Being a Wallflower

Citation

"For anyone trying to discern what to do with their life, pay attention to what you pay attention to. That's pretty much all the information you need."

-Amy Krouse Rosenthal

Citation

"Your perceived failure can be a catalyst for profound reinvention."

-Conan O'Brien

Citation

"To fall in love with the world isn't to ignore or overlook suffering, both human or otherwise. For me anyway, to fall in love with the world is to look up at the night sky and feel your mind swim before the beauty and the distance of the stars. It is to hold your children while they cry and watch the sycamore trees leaf out in June. When my breastbone starts to hurt, and my throat tightens and tears well in my eyes, I want to look away from feeling. I want to deflect with irony or anything else that will keep me from feeling directly. We all know how loving ends. But I want to fall in love with the world anyway, to let it crack me open. I want to feel what there is to feel while I am here."

-John Green

Citation

"I'll never again speak to many of the people who loved me into this moment, just as you will never speak to many of the people who loved you into your now. So we raise a glass to them—and hope that perhaps somewhere, they are raising a glass to us."

-John Green

Personal Bio

Michael experienced significant challenges due to his family's move and parents' divorce in 2008, transitioning from Shiloh Point Elementary to Level Creek Elementary in second grade. Diagnosed with ADHD, he faced difficulties with social connections and focus, compounded by long hours spent after school at his mother's workplace. These years were marked by isolation, sensitivity, and creativity, often using craft supplies to occupy himself.

Influenced greatly by his grandmother Patricia "Grandpatty" Prather, Michael developed interests in photography, theater, art, and local culture. His early success included winning a photography contest in fourth grade. Despite struggles with medication and developing a stutter, Michael found community through theater at Suwanee Academy of the Arts, where he first met his lifelong friend, Andrew Cook.

The family faced financial hardship following the divorce, further complicating his childhood. His mother remarried in 2010, introducing additional tension and instability at home due to his stepfather's struggles with alcoholism and serious health issues. Middle school brought deeper emotional struggles, including severe depression, medication frustrations, and complex family dynamics that required therapeutic support. Michael also navigated significant emotional turmoil from relationships, particularly an impactful but painful friendship in eighth grade.

Throughout these challenging times, Michael maintained close relationships with his grandmother and gradually built a stronger bond with his father, who became increasingly supportive and involved in his life. These formative experiences deeply shaped his character, values, and creative pursuits.

His parents would eventually divorced in 2008. Andy would then move to a condo in Atlanta while Michael, Ryan, and Audrey would live with their mother Paige, moving from house to house throughout the North Georgia area. He does not remember too much about the time of the divorce, nor has there been much talk about the circumstances surrounding it or many memories at that time. He does recall being checked out of school randomly and going on an impromptu trip to Florida for a while with just his mother and siblings. He does not think he was ever formally sat down and told about the divorce.

▼ Career

Professional Bio

Michael Slusher is a versatile artist with various experiences within the realm of arts, spanning graphic design, photography, and performing arts both on and off the stage. Throughout his career, he has navigated various roles, ranging from photographer, graphic designer, and editor to technical theater expert, performing arts mentor, director, and more. This diverse array of positions has provided him with a wide range of experience, as he's embraced each role with a curiosity to understand and grasp every layer of the creative and production processes. Michael has a dedication to creating compelling and impactful content with a genuine desire to forge meaningful connections through his work. He is driven to continuously expand his knowledge and constantly push the boundaries of his understanding of the creative process. His artistic journey began at 14 when he stepped into a Teacher's Assistant role at a performing arts school. Guiding students aged 6-18, he delved into the intricacies of theater and gained an understanding of how to work professionally in a company and with a team at a young age. This initial role evolved into a full-time instructor position, where he taught acting and technical theater, also assuming roles of director, production manager, stage manager, and more. The scope of his productions extended from intimate improv shows to grand theatrical spectacles, captivating audiences of all sizes. Simultaneously, Michael continued to sharpen his skills in other domains. His photography and design techniques continued growing, leading him to collaborate with diverse clients and offer creative solutions across various scales. His conviction in utilizing creativity as a catalyst for enhancing the lives of others has allowed him to continue to develop works that are valuable to the individual and impactful and effective for professional use. Michael commits to providing high-quality creative work while maintaining a solid and valuable human connection with those he has the pleasure of working with.

I specialize in photographing people and what's important to them! I have always been into all things creative and have a passion for using art to showcase people and businesses at their best. I got my start in photography and performing arts at a young age and have dedicated my life to evolving as an artist and collaborating with people to create something new and beautiful or help a client's vision come to life.

I spent many years gaining an appreciation for the arts by practicing photography while being heavily involved with theater. During my theatrical career, I wanted to be involved with every step of the process and understand everything about the business and technical side of making art come to life. I spent my time growing up being involved with every production I possibly could be. By the time I graduated high school, I had been in several dozen productions. I soon began working professionally, teaching acting and technical theater classes while also producing and directing various productions. I taught classes involving many different methodologies and techniques, as well as directing a successful improv troupe and teaching a technical theater class. I have worked on productions from a scale of intimate black box improv shows to large-scale musical productions involving special effects for audiences of thousands. As a photographer, I am passionate about photographing people. Whether it's a portrait, at a special event, or while performing, I love being there to capture people looking their best and doing what they love. I started out taking headshots for friends and family and photographing local theater productions. I have worked on always improving my skills and doing whatever I can to craft an image the client and myself can be proud of.

Always eager to create, I have ventured professionally into other avenues of visual art.

I began my graphic design career designing promotional material for theater productions. I then worked at a mom-and-pop print shop, designing for local businesses and individuals. I have also worked at a large-scale agency, designing for clients on a larger scale.

Furthermore, I have also always had a passion for filmmaking and videography. Having studied in Atlanta and collaborated with various professional mentors within the industry, I have always worked hard to build up my film production and camerawork skills. I gained experience filming shorts and scenes for student performers and taping auditions for working actors.

My ultimate goal in every project is to create not only visually beautiful work but also an engaging and pleasant experience for everyone involved. I value the relationships I build with my clients and collaborators, and I am committed to ensuring that our work together is a positive and rewarding experience.
